PREFATIO.

EMO est qui nescit Geographiam tanquam Oculum esse Historiæ, neq; Classicos Scriptores, vel Græcos, vel Romanos, veteris Literaturæ monumenta, nisi Tabularum Geographicarum ope, posse cum fructu legi. Atque hinc quidem factum est, quod plerisq; veterum scriptorum melioris notæ Editionibus, ejulmodi Tabulæ semper sere affigantur, etsi rudiores ea sint, & minus correctæ, gravioris tamen pretii quam ut à pueris possint comparari. Verum quo aliquid sieret quod tam communioris esset usus, quam vilioris pretii, in usum præcipuè Juventutis, visum est numero cuidam doctorum virorum, in quibus Episcopus erat eruditissimus, opus hoc sermone Gallico aggredi, cumq; implessent ejus numeros, in quantum modulus operis pateretur, communicatum est clarissimo Domino Du Val, qui illo tempore Geographus fuerat Ludovico XIV. Gallorum Regi, qui quondam Amanuensis suerat prædicto Episcopo; atq; ille in Lucem edidit XXVIII Tabulis, in quibus Veteris Orbis describebantur Imperia, Regna, Provinciæ, Urbes præcipuæ, Oppida, Fluvii, Montesque, &c. Cùm verò plurimis Locorum veterum nominibus Gallicas ille secerit Terminationes, quod Hercule non est illi proprium, cum & alii plurimi ante illum idem secerint, quo placerent suis, nos instituti nostri duximus diversa niti ratione, nam secuti sumus Eachardum nostrum, Cellarium, atq; alios quorum ope in hoc opusculo usi sumus.

PREFACE.

Right Hand of History; and that the Classicks, whether Greek or Latin, those excellent Monuments of Ancient Learning, cannot rightly be understood without the help of Maps of those Countries they treat of; hence it is that in all the valuable Editions of the Classicks, Maps have been fitted for them, tho' not so correct as could be wish'd, and yet commonly so dear as not to be purchas'd by the generality of School-Boys.

But that something might be done of more universal Use as well as Cheapness to Scholars, a set of Curious Gentlemen in France, among whom there was a learned Prelate, undertook this Work in good earnest, and having brought it to as great a Perfection as the bigness of the Design would bear, the Compositions were put into the Hands of Mons. Du Val, Geographer to the French King, Lewis XIV. who was for some time Amanuensis to the said Bishop, and publish'd it in 28 Maps of the old World and its several Empires, Kingdoms and Provinces, Chief Cities, Towns, Rivers, Mountains, &c. but as he has given French Terminations to most of the Ancient Places, which is a thing not singular in him with respect to his Countrymen, who have done the like upon other occasions, 'tis what we thought absolutely necessary to see rectify'd, and have therefore done it according to Mr. Eachard's Classical Geographical Dictionary, Cellarius, and the Corrections of other learned Gentlemen now living, who assisted in this Work.

PRÆFATIO.

Nemo est qui non videbit protinus Tabellas istas Geographicas adornatas suisse in usum Scholassicæ Juventutis. Omars Novæ sunt, consectæq; juxta nuperrimas, & accuratissimas Observationes: harum singulæ scalam habent Milliarium Britannicorum, quibus singulis sexaginta sunt Gradus. Ubi vero Gradus minutiores sunt quam ut responderent uni Scalæ, usi sumus Mercatoris Projectione, eique accommodavimus scalam, de quâ videsis Orbis Tabulam N. 1. &c. Hâc poterunt Discentes facillime Intervalla metiri, usumq; percipere tam Autiquarum, quam Recentiorum Tabularum. Neq; hoc loco prætereundum duco quam prosicuum hoc opusculum suturum sit etiam provectioris ætatis hominibus in Classicorum Lectione.

Huic etiam Compendio Quatuor novas subjecimus Tabulas: Unam, Civilium Bellorum Julii Cæsaris, & Pompeii Magni, N. 27. Alteram Intinerum Israëlitarum in Arabiæ Deserto, una cum Descriptione Sanctæ Terræ, sive Canaan, N. 31. Tertiam, Itinerarii Divi Pauli, aliorumq; Locorum, quorum sit mentio in Testamento Novo. Vide N. 32. Quartam, Tabulam Asiæ Antiquæ, primorumq; post Diluvium Populorum, N. 30. Hæc consecta est à Clarissimo W. Stukeley, M. D. Regiæ Societatis Socio, quam ille nobis benignissimè impertivit, cui unà cum aliis viris doctis opem nobis serentibus grates agimus meritissimas. In Ordinandis autem istis Tabulis nullam rationem positionis habendam existimavimus, cùm hoc nullo modo necessarium suerit nostro Instituto, vel operis Legi. Tu verò, mi Lector, benè Consule, & vale.

The PREFACE.

It's obvious that this Collection of New Maps is principally design'd for the Service of the Schools; they are all of them New, and laid down according to the latest and most exact Observations that have been made; each Map having a Scale of British Miles, 60 to One Decree; and where the Number of Degrees are too many to answer to one Scale, we have made use of Mercator's Projection, and fitted a Scale accordingly, for which see Orbis Tabula, N. 1. &c. Here the Scholar may measure Distances with Pleasure, and naturally be led to understand the Use of ancient and modern Maps; neither must we omit the Improvement this Collection may likewise yield to those of riper Years, who take Delight to read the Classicks.

We have added Four New Maps to this Collection, viz. a Map of the Civil War between Casar and Pompey, N. 27. The Journeying of the Children of Israel in the Wilderness, together with the Land of Cannan, &c. N. 31. The Travels and Voyages of St. Paul, and of the other Places mentioned in the Books of the New Testament, &c. N. 32. Another is the Scriptural Map of the Ancient Asia, as Peopled after the universal Deluge, N. 30. which was much wanted, it is the Composition of the Learned Dr. Stukeley, Fellow of the Royal Society, who most generously presented us with it, for the Incouragement of this Design, to whom we return our hearty Thanks, as we do also to the other Gentlemen, who gave us their Affistance in this Work.

As to the placing of the Maps, more regard has been had to the Connection and Relation they have to one another, in respect to Empires, Conquests, Situation of Countries, &c. and to Time, than to the Antiquity of the Authors, from whose Works they have been extracted; and forasmuch as some of them differ from the rest in Size, it could not possibly be avoided without cramping

the Delign.
